STP 2012 Campaign

is an international activist initiative that works for depathologization of trans expressions, trajectories and identities. The principal demands of STP 2012 are the removal of the 'Gender Dysphoria' / 'Gender Identity Disorders' categories from the diagnosis manuals DSM and ICD, as well as the guarantee of trans health rights, including public coverage of trans-specific health care and a change of the actual evaluation model towards one based on autonomy and informed decision.
STP 2012 - International Campaign Stop Trans Pathologization

History of the STP 2012 Campaign

October 2008: Demonstrations in 11 European cities.

June 2009: First International STP 2012 Call for Action.

October 2009: Demonstrations and other actions in 41 cities of different world regions.

October 2010: Demonstrations and other actions in 61 cities of different continents.

October 2011: Demonstration and other actions in 70 cities of different continents.

Demands

1. The removal of the “Gender Dysphoria” / “Gender Identity Disorders” categories from the international diagnosis manuals (their next versions DSM-5 and ICD-11).

2. The abolition of binary normalization treatments to intersex people.

3. Free access to hormonal treatments and surgery (without psychiatric monitoring).

5. The fight against transphobia: the work for educational training and social inclusion and employment for trans people, as well as the visibility and reporting of all types of social or institutional transphobia.

* * *

STP 2012 Call for Action

International Action Day for Trans Depathologization

Saturday, October 20, 2012

Demonstrations and other actions for trans depathologization in different parts of the world

More than 320 activist groups and networks from Africa, Asia, Europa, Latin America, North America and Oceania support the STP 2012 Campaign.

To support STP 2012 individually or as a group:
contact@stp2012.info

Other activities

• Networking
• Participation in Meetings, Congresses and Seminars.
• Information activities.
• Participation in working groups.
• Elaboration of proposals.